Invites 33 Business, Labor and Government Leaders To Meet Tuesday

LABOR BOARD ANGRY

Split Reported To Be Serious
Over the Calling of the Conference

WASHINGTON, Apr. 14—Secretary Perkins has invited 33 business, labor and government leaders to meet here next Tuesday in the first of a series of conferences to establish industrial peace under the Wagner act.

As her invitations went out, Congressional leaders said the Supreme Court's new and broad interpretation of Federal power over industry under the Constitution's interstate commerce clause, as expressed in the Wagner decisions, was certain to bring action at this session on new maximum hour and minimum wage legislation.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has angered the National Labor Relations Board again—this time seriously. Madam Secretary's sudden call for a conference of industrial interests, labor leaders and representatives of government and the public, to discuss the subject of collective bargaining in the wake of the Supreme Court's upholding the Wagner Act, made the Board members angry.

Publicly they will not comment on the tense situation which Miss Perkins precipitated but at the initial meeting of the Board after the Supreme Court's action, the subject was brought up with some rather warm comment.

Senate Passes State Wagner Act; Vote, 42 to 8

HARRISBURG, Apr. 14—In the wake of charges it was passing the back to the House, the State Senate yesterday passed finally the McGinnis bill setting up a labor relations board and a companion measure giving it powers of mediation and arbitration in industrial controversies.

The bill: Establishes a State Labor Relations Board, empowered to conduct employee elections to determine majority union representation.

Outlaws company unions.
Outlaws labor spies and informers.
Provides for fines up to $5000 and one year in prison for those who engage in unfair labor practices.

The bill was introduced by Senator B. B. McGinnis, Allegheny Democrat, with a companion measure which expands the mediation bureau of the Department of Labor and Industry. The companion bill was passed 38 to 8.

Thus, under the new setup: The Labor Relations Board will continue its functions to setting up collective bargaining machinery. When negotiations there fail the mediation bureau will—with consent of both parties to the dispute—step in.

The labor board will be composed of three $9000-a-year members appointed by Governor Earle. One will represent labor, one the business world, and one the public.

Highway Patrol In War On "Cowboy" Drivers

"Cow-boy" drivers who use Bucks county highways for a race course, are being "blown down" wholesale these days. During the past seven days, officers of the Doylestown and Oxford Valley sub-stations of State Highway Patrol, have arrested 122 motorists, including men and women, on charges of speeding, reckless driving, failing to stop at "stop signs," and following too closely. Various fines and costs were paid. The fastest "racer" to pay a fine was driving his car 78 miles an hour when he was clocked and arrested by a patrolman on the Bethlehem pike near Montgomeryville.

Practically all of the arrests were made on the Bethlehem pike, Lackawanna Trail, Lincoln Highway and Bristol pike.

MOVIES BOOM IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM—(INS)—More than 43,000,000 kronor were spent on amusements in Sweden's major cities in 1936, or 10.5 per cent more than the preceding year. The major part of this sum, or 26,000,000 kronor, was taken in by the motion picture theaters. Dramatic and concert performances and sports events accounted for 9,300,000 kronor, and the balance was collected for other entertainments for which an amusement tax is demanded. Stockholm showed a 13 per cent increase in the amount of tax collected. Gothenburg eight per cent, and Malmo, Sweden's third largest city, 12 per cent.

POSTPONE MEETING

The Woman's Home Missionary Society, Bristol M. E. Church, will conduct its regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening, April 22nd, instead of April 15th. The session will be held in the church parlor at eight o'clock.

LIVELY AND SMILING

JOHN ARNOLD WEIK Bristol

There are campaigners and campaigners in The Courier's Baby Election, but there's only one "Johnny" Arnold Weik, aged about four years, weight 35 pounds, never still when he's awake, and known to every person who traverses Mill street. "Johnny", without doubt, is one of the liveliest and best liked youngsters in the entire community, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weik, 200 Mill street. Among those closest to this boy's heart is his "Aunt Eliza," whom he considers a real pal, even if she isn't a boy. Mrs. Thomas Argust, 210 Jefferson avenue, and Mrs. Frank Weik, of Bath street, Bristol, are his grandparents, and among those hopeful that he will carry off high honors when the thirty prizes are awarded.

Veteran Auctioneer Dies; Ill Five Months

CARVERSVILLE, Apr. 14—One of Bucks county's best known auctioneers for many years, Joshua Anderson, 61, died at his home here today, after being confined to bed for five months with a liver condition.

"Josh" Anderson, as he was known among his thousands of friends, was the "daddy" of all Bucks county auctioneers. He has cried thousands of sales, including the homes of many of who have located in Bucks county. He the present prominent New Yorker has sold more antiques out of Bucks county than any other auctioneer during his active life.

He was a native of Buckingham and started as an auctioneer 41 years ago. The funeral will be private on Thursday, with interment in the Carversville Cemetery. There will be a viewing this evening.

The survivors include the widow, Mary Shupe Anderson; and one sister, Mrs. Martha Piche, of Montreal, Canada.

BUCKS CO. EMPLOYERS CONTRIBUTE $110,230.74

Returns To Unemployment
Compensation Fund Made
By 1214 Employers

AFTER DELINQUENTS

HARRISBURG, Apr. 14—Bucks County employers contributed $110,230.74 to the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Fund, up to March 22, according to figures released here today by Ralph M. Bashore, Secretary of Labor and Industry.

Returns were received from 1214 liable employers in Bucks County. Field representatives of the Unemployment Compensation Division are still conducting the drive on delinquents who have failed to report on their 1936 payrolls as required by the Law.

The unemployment compensation fund, Mr. Bashore reported, is nearing the $26,000,000 mark. That amount is $2,500,000 more than the goal that was set by Governor Earle when he called a Special Session of the Legislature in December to pass a State Unemployment Compensation Act that would conform with Federal Social Security Laws.

The drive to list every liable employer as a contributor to the fund will continue until the Unemployment Compensation Law has been fully complied with, Mr. Bashore asserted. He explained that every liable employer of one or more who failed to make his contribution on or before March 1, 1937, will be subject to a penalty of one per cent a month on his delinquent contribution.

BODIES OF MISSING CLIMBERS FOUND

SANTIAGO, Chile—(INS)—A search party has found the bodies of two of the missing members of an expedition of five who set out to climb Mount Aconcagua (22,834 feet).

The body of one, Senor Solari, was found at a height of 17,400 feet, and the body of the other, Senor Freile, at a height of 19,500 feet.

One of the mountaineers, who arrived at the camp at 20,328 feet without news of his companions, was safely rescued.

COURIER ADDS TO FAVORITE BABY ELECTION PRIZES

The Bristol Courier, intent on bringing more business into co-operating merchants' stores and placing The Courier in more homes, has added to the original prize list in its Favorite Baby Election, and the revised and increased list of prizes are as follows:

First Prize	$500	Sixteenth Prize	$ 15
(And Silver Loving Cup)		Seventeenth Prize	10
Second Prize	250	Eighteenth Prize	10
Third Prize	100	Nineteenth Prize	10
Fourth Prize	50	Twentieth Prize	10
Fifth Prize	50	Twenty-first Prize	5
Sixth Prize	25	Twenty-second Prize	5
Seventh Prize	25	Twenty-third Prize	5
Eighth Prize	25	Twenty-fourth Prize	5
Ninth Prize	25	Twenty-fifth Prize	5
Tenth Prize	20	Twenty-sixth Prize	5
Eleventh Prize	15	Twenty-seventh Prize	5
Twelfth Prize	15	Twenty-eighth Prize	5
Thirteenth Prize	15	Twenty-ninth Prize	5
Fourteenth Prize	15	Thirtieth Prize	5
Fifteenth Prize	15	Special Prize for this week	100
		Total	$1,350

A special fund has been set aside to be paid babies who do not win one of the prizes—10 per cent of all subscriptions turned in for a baby will be paid in the event the baby does not win one of the THIRTY prizes, and providing the commission check amounts to $3 or more; however, should the commissions amount to more than the prize won, the larger amount will be paid.

TEN DAYS REMAIN IN "FAVORITE" ELECTION

Added Prizes of $350, Shortness of Time, Speed
Efforts to Win

VOTES ARE PILING UP

This is proving the week of weeks in Bristol and communities' Favorite Baby Election, with a special added prize of $100 at stake for the week's effort, and with only ten days remaining before the little king or queen is crowned, interest is easily at the highest pitch thus far in the exciting event. Two hundred and fifty dollars have been added to the original prize list.

Every backer of a potential "Favorite" realizes that with the THREE-for-one schedule in effect until next Saturday night, April 17th, no one can afford to hold back and wait for the final week to dawn, for under the three-for-one plan of votes a candidate might be left far behind by more enterprising campaigners.

April will prove the most interesting month, perhaps, in Bucks county's recent history, as it will be the month in which the communities' most favorite baby was elected by popular vote and crowned literally with a "Shower of Cash" and attendant honors.

Victories are many times hollow, especially if they come by default, but the victorious baby in the election ending Saturday night, April 24th, will not be chosen that way. It is a battle of favorites, scores of them, and any one may easily win, but not without proper backing. Just how deep the favoritism in any individual case is, is shown in the votes cast, and that will determine, entirely, who is the winner.

Still pursuing the thought that best results are obtained at home, backers of the little campaigners are turning their time and talents into the stores and into the campaign to increase popularity and service of The Bristol Courier. The respective enterprises are flourishing and are beginning to feel that the depression is lifting, actually on the wings of a baby's laughter and popularity, for the votes electing the favorite are derived from the more material side aspects of the campaign.

Spring has brought a decided change in Bristol and community and this particular season could not be more appropriately chosen for the crowning of queen or king of babyland. From the pictures that appear in these columns, it would be difficult to say where the glory and honor belongs or where it may finally be bestowed. Certain it is, however, that the occupier of babyland's throne will be a true Bucks Countian in every sense, and a rightful ruler, crowned with the splendid effort of achievement in a campaign that has marked a new epoch for interest in the county.

With today included there are still 10 days until the winner is named. Ten days packed with activity for your favorite will slip quickly by, but they'll be happy days for you if you leave nothing undone that may put your child on the glorious path towards the coveted crown. Will you make every day count?

COLLEGE SENIORS TEACH ON SIDE

BURLINGTON, Vt.—(INS)—University of Vermont has placed 53 senior students in practice work positions in high schools throughout Vermont, teaching regular high school courses. All regular high school subjects are taught, with teachers for the most part having classes in which they were most interested in college.

Students undertaking this experience obtaining plan must have good grades and are required to observe experienced teachers at work before being permitted to take over classes. This plan has been a part of the training given prospective teachers at University of Vermont for 20 years.

PLAN SCHOOL OF ANIMAL PATHOLOGY AT EMILIE

Governor Earle to Ask Legislature to Appropriate
$100,000 For It

TO USE MORRIS FARM

Plans are underway for the establishment of a school of animal pathology on the Bolton Farm of the late Effingham B. Morris at Emilie, according to a statement emanating from Harrisburg. Plans for the school were revealed at Harrisburg yesterday when Governor Earle announced he would ask the Legislature for an additional appropriation of $100,000 to help the University of Pennsylvania establish it.

The school was projected for years by Penn officials, but a suitable farm was not available. Then recently the Morris heirs offered the rolling, 400-acre farm near Bristol, together with its historic buildings and all the blooded livestock.

It was offered as an outright gift, provided that it be used for a school of pathology. Dr. Alfred Stengel, vice-president in charge of medical affairs at the university, took news of the offer to Harrisburg yesterday and won the Governor's pledge of support.

The farm has been in the Morris family since colonial days. Although he maintained his principal home in Ardmore, the banker passed a great deal of time there.

The school will study diseases of wild and domestic animals and the possible transmission of dangerous diseases from them to man. Economic damages of animal disease to agriculture and livestock also will be investigated.

Kindness To Animals Week

Square Deal for Animals

Be Kind To Animals Week, April 11-17, calls on everybody to give adequate care, and here are some of the rules:

Don't keep any animal unless you are prepared to give proper care.

Give every dog a license tag, your name and address on the collar.

Provide a proper sleeping place, cement floors will not do.

Feed at regular periods and the food must be suited to the animal, whether a dog, cat or some other—all deserve consideration.

Plenty of fresh water always, for all animals.

For the past two years Be Kind To Animals Anniversary, annually conducted by the American Humane Association, has been accompanied by an appeal to motorists to be more careful. The number of animals, domestic and wild, injured and killed on the highways, is practically incalculable. The right of an animal on the highway has become recognized to such an extent that in some states laws have been passed to safeguard this right.

In Bucks county schools, celebrations are being held this week, assisted by Boy Scouts, and prizes will be awarded for posters entered in the contest held recently in the schools by the Bucks County Humane Education Club. Rewards will also be given for any outstanding kind deeds done for our animal friends, by the girls and boys in the schools. This is a good season for parents to be sure that their boys are not equipped with BB, sling shot, or other weapon to decrease our bird life, which plays such a very important part in our economic scheme.

The meeting room of Camp 313 at Cornwells Heights was recently damaged by fire and for this reason the place of the district meeting has been changed to Bristol.

SPORTSMEN DISCUSS LAWS; NAME OFFICERS

Bristol Fish and Game Ass'n
Holds Largely-Attended
Meeting

SEE GAME PICTURES

More than 125 members of the Bristol Fish & Game Association and their friends met at the Elks' Home last evening to conduct a regular business meeting, discuss proposed sportsmen legislation in Pennsylvania, and to see one of the most entertaining and interesting moving picture shows ever presented to such a group in this vicinity. Officers of the Association were elected for the coming year.

Howard Black, current vice-president, was unanimously elected president. The offices of secretary and treasurer were again filled by the present officers when John Johnson was unanimously re-elected secretary and Ralph Ratcliffe, treasurer. Robert Sutton was elected to the office of vice-president.

The new board of governors of the Association was also elected last evening. The members include: H. H. Dettmer, Leon Comly, Donald Moyer, Frank Murphy and Edward Dyer.

Eight new members were also voted into active membership when C. V. VanSant, Alfred Woolman, William J. Keen, Ewald R. Douglass, Wilbur H. Smith, William H. Durr, Walter A. Tilley, and Herman Leuschell were accepted into the Association.

The game committee report, given by Thomas Scott, showed that 80 cock pheasants have been liberated this Spring in this section. Mr. Scott also stated that a number of quail will be released sometime in the future.

General discussion at the meeting dealt with proposed new legislation that will affect Pennsylvania sportsmen. The Sunday Fishing Bill was one of these bills, but last minute advices from Philadelphia indicated that the bill had passed both Houses and therefore awaits the action of the Governor.

Motions were made to have resolutions drawn up for the Association which would voice its disapproval of certain clauses of the proposed special October season permits and the regulated shooting grounds. General discussion revealed that sportsmen are opposed to the special October license because it would penalize those who desire to hunt woodcock, snipe, rails, and gallinule during October, and if a person desires to illegally shoot pheasants and grouse during October he may be permitted in the fields by obtaining a special license. Objection to the proposed regulated shooting ground comes from the fact that it will probably introduce the European plan of hunting into Pennsylvania.

Sportsmen claim that it gives privileges to those who can afford to pay while the average hunter must be content to shoot at male pheasants during the regular season in November.

Objection was also voiced against a proposed measure which would levy a tax or license fee of two dollars against every pistol possessed by a person. Because there was no exception stated in this proposed bill members of the Association opposed it saying that a man who had a collection of pistols and revolvers would have to spend considerable for licenses.

The moving picture show which was highly enjoyed by the sportsmen was given by Clarence Winter. Topics of the sound pictures presented included: "Sea Going Birds," "Playground of the Mammals," a picture of reminiscence, "The Barefoot Boy," "Conflicts of Nature," showing insect life, "Taming the Wildcat," a bit of comedy with Walt Disney and one of Aesop's Fables, and an extremely interesting and educational picture of the development and procedure of building the Buick automobile.

President in Pan-American Day Address

Washington, April 14—President Roosevelt today pointed to the harmonious relations existing between all nations of the Western hemisphere as a free object lesson to war-present Europe.

"Democracy cannot thrive in an atmosphere of international interference," declared the President in a Pan-American Day address here.

"Such insecurity breeds militarism, regimentation and the denial of freedom of speech, of peaceful assemblage and religion. Such insecurity challenges the ideas of Democracy based on the free choice of government by the people.

"There is a logical development we of the America's believe, that the continued maintenance and improvement of Democracy constitute the most important guarantee of international peace."

Report Losses in Spain

Salamanca, April 14—The rebel radio station at Cordova today claimed government forces lost between 12,000 and 14,000 men killed in fighting during the last four days on the Cordova front.

The radio station here claimed hundreds of civilians were killed and wounded when six loyalist bombing planes raided Huesca.

WPA CLASS HEARS OF CITIZENSHIP'S VALUE

A patriotic program presented before members of the W. P. A. Americanization class meeting in Sons of Italy Hall, last evening, by members of Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, American Legion, and the Legion Auxiliary, was largely attended.

The speaker on this occasion was Hugh B. Eastburn, a member of the executive committee of Bracken Post; with others introduced to the gathering by Miss Dora Thompson, in charge of the WPA classes here, being: Joseph Schreiber, Americanism officer of Bracken Post; Mrs. Harry Wessaw, president of the Auxiliary; Mrs. Arthur Zug and Mrs. Dorothy Fechtenburg, past presidents of the Auxiliary; and Mrs. William Griffiths, an Auxiliary member, and wife of the commander of the local post.

LEGION IS THE SPONSOR

The program of last evening was presented for members of the WPA Americanization class which is studying each Thursday evening in the hall donated for this purpose by the Sons of Italy. Use of the building was granted when classes became too large to be cared for entirely at the old Wood street school building.

Mr. Eastburn congratulated the men and women gathered, upon their desire to become citizens of the United States of America, and on their eagerness "to learn the rudiments of this government. Citizenship in this country is one of the finest things to be obtained by anyone. Here every man is the equal of every other man. . . . In America, freedom of speech is practiced freely; freedom of religion can be practiced by everybody."

Those natives of foreign lands, who had assembled, were told by Mr. Eastburn that "Every American citizen who served in the World War came back with the realization of what a glorious country this is, and what a terrible thing war is. They realized that good government founded on the golden rule would be the best insurance against another war."

In considering conditions in many countries on the other side of the water, the speaker told that "There is no freedom of speech or religion in some foreign countries. When you become citizens, realize that you have inherited one of the finest things possible. Practice in your individual life what you learn in your classes. The family is combined of individuals; town government is a combination of Continued on Page Four

J. McLaughlin, 18, Sentenced To Huntington Reform- atory by Phila. Judge

TO BE TRIED IN BUCKS

Held Without Bail by Justice of Peace James Guy for Robberies Here

The lone bandit who attempted to hold-up and rob William Murray at the Wright Service Garage, Bath and Otter streets, here, early on the morning of March 30th, was lodged in the Bucks County jail at Doylestown yesterday afternoon.

The prisoner, Joseph McLaughlin, 18, 4103 Worrell street, Philadelphia, was brought to Bristol from Philadelphia, after he had had a hearing in that city on the charges of stealing an automobile and burglary.

McLaughlin was given a hearing before Judge Millar in Philadelphia City Hall, yesterday morning. He pleaded guilty to the charges. He was sentenced to an indeterminate sentence at the Huntington Reformatory. After being sentenced McLaughlin was turned over to Linford J. Jones, chief of police of Bristol, and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo. McLaughlin was brought back here and given a hearing before Justice of Peace James Guy on the charge of attempting the hold-up here and robbing a number of automobiles. He was held without bail for court.

McLaughlin will be tried at the next term of criminal court at Doylestown and sentenced if found guilty. He will then be returned to Philadelphia to begin serving his sentence at Huntington. At the completion of the Huntington sentence he will be turned over to the Bucks County authorities, if he is convicted at his court trial and begin serving his sentence in Bucks County.

McLaughlin, according to his statement of confession to the police, stole a car from a garage in Philadelphia, drove to Bristol, robbed a number of automobiles here, stealing a pair of overalls, two revolvers, a bottle of milk, radio and flashlight. He drove back to Philadelphia and later returned to Bristol, driving up to the Wright Garage at about five o'clock on the morning of March 30th. He asked Murray to give him two gallons of gasoline and then pointing a pistol at Murray demanded that he "go inside and shell out." Murray refused twice and McLaughlin lost his nerve, jumped into his car and drove off.

Medal Contest Is Won By Miss Laura Ellis

An interesting meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held last evening in the First Baptist Sunday School room, with visitors from Hulmeville, Morrisville and Fallsington present.

Members of Bristol Union participated in a medal contest. Mrs. Harry Headley, who gave an excellent recitation of beautiful verses, and Mrs. Mary DuHamel, who gave a fine rendition of the 13th Chapter of 1st Corinthians, declined to be considered for the award. The choice rested between three, the Misses Jane Rogers, Laura Ellis and Anna Heritage. The judges who awarded the medal to Miss Laura Ellis were Mrs. Anna Roberts, Morrisville; Miss Effie Watson, Fallsington; and Mrs. Joseph O. Canby, Hulmeville. All rendered their selections in a most creditable manner. Mrs. Lucy Harper, Yardley, former county president, who was expected to be one of the judges, was unable to be present.

Piano selections by Miss Mary Rogers; vocal solos by Mrs. Elwood Dyer and Miss Grace Shaver; and songs by the group interspersed the program.

Refreshments were served by the social committee; and a food sale was conducted for benefit of the Centennial Education Fund.

Doylestown Debaters To Enter State Finals

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 14—Doylestown High School's debating team that finished first in the recent 13th district tournament, will enter the Pennsylvania State finals at Altoona, Thursday and Friday, April 22 and 23. Four boys on this team, members of the senior class will this year miss the annual trip to Washington because of conflicting dates.

"We decided to leave the students choose for themselves," J. Leonard Halderman, supervising principal, said today. "I must admit that when 4 high school boys put a scholastic ambition above that of their high school ambition of a yearly trip to Washington, it is something to be happy about."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1937

300,000 TO BE MURDERED

Although dimly aware of the facts before, because of its mathematical definiteness, we find something sharply arresting in the statement of a Department of Justice official that 300,000 persons now living in this country will some day be murdered.

This means that in spite of all the education, the moral and religious training, the attempts to improve those social conditions which may incite to violence, and the likelihood of punishment for murderous acts, one out of every 400 of us is almost certain to be shot, stabbed, poisoned, choked, or blackjacked, and that approximately another one of each 400 is destined to be the instrument of our unexpected and unpleasant demise.

Besides provoking a shudder at the thought of our own danger when walking home in the dark, these figures should inspire some very sober thought. Just what stage of growth and evolution have human beings reached? Evidently it is a discouragingly low one.

We talk much of prosperity, of liberty, of culture, and so on, but it appears that there are deeper problems to be met than these about which we daily raise such argumentative hullabaloo. What of the fundamental ethical sense which is supposed to be an attribute of civilized man? That also is sadly lacking.

In a part of our work for the elevation of the race we must still go back to the elementary stages and strive to make ourselves just simply moral. Many of us, it seems, are only emerging from savagery, if not from unbridled animalism, and have a long climb ahead before we can properly be called civilized men.

WORST MIGHT BE BEST

More and more indications point to the need of greater federal revenue. Already it is certain that the next budget will be far out of balance. Many groups are pressing for expenditures. Administration policies made or in the making contain a promise not of retrenchment but of additional costs certain to run into immense figures. March payments on income tax returns are likely to be a quarter of a billion below estimates.

All of which leads to the inevitable conclusion that Mr. Roosevelt's optimistic hope that there would be no need for additional taxes will not be realized. Administration and congressional leaders are dodging public expressions on the subject, but it is said that underneath the surface they are fearful that they will have to face the worst.

And that worst, in their view, is a spread of income tax levies to the point where few earners would find themselves exempt from payment. It is the worst because it would make the whole country tax conscious. If it were to become so, that would mean that public spending would come in for such a public scanning as it has not had in all these years during which the public debt has mounted to such magnificent heights.

However, the politicians' worst is often the people's best. And if the country should happily be made acutely tax conscious there would be some hope of putting a check upon uncontrolled spending.

All the world needs is an agreement not to have any more wars until the old ones are paid for.

CHAPTER XIII

Jarvis' wife whose name was Flavia, flowed over to where Sandy was leaning against the rail. He had observed already this quality of fluency in her. It was of speech, of gesture, the way she moved, just as gravity is the keynote of some people or levity or solidarity or flippancy, Flavia's was fluency. She would flow into empty places, possibly brim over full ones, he opined. It was an insidious process, and apt to be complete, like the pouring of something plastic or molten into a mold. It was possible he thought that she occupied her husband's vacant premises that way to keep him from being a mere shell.

There came at this moment the spilling of what the Colonel had saved for a surprise, a sort of sleepy trumpeting that held a suggestion of repletion, vast content and a drowsy good night. Mouse had made a hole for his shoulder and was composing himself for the night.

"Mercy—" gasped Hester.

"What's that?"

"If I were in India," Vinckers said, "I'd say it was an elephant. Used to hear the beggars bugle that way when I was painting the portraits of Rajahs and things."

The sound came again. This time followed by rumblings and gurglings unmistakable in that still night air to the ear of the uninitiated.

"My word," Vinckers cried, "that is an elephant or else I'm barmy."

"Daddy!" Hester exclaimed. "It's not."

"It is though. Now that my coup de theatre is off," the Colonel admitted in the guilty tone of a small boy who has smuggled home a stray cat or dog he knows the family would not approve.

Sandy did not miss the quick look that passed from one to the other of the fresh arrivals or its significance. He was on the edge of announcing himself the author of this joke, saying that he had once heard the Colonel express his fondness for elephants and thought the island would be a perfect place for one, then caught Isabel's eye and held his peace. There was a short silence. Then Vinckers laughed and said casually in the way that a member of the family might attempt to glide over an infirmity of its head.

"So you decided to indulge your fancy, Colonel?"

Colonel Carlton seemed to stiffen in his chair.

"Well, why not?" he challenged. "The doctor says I'm not to ride a horse, if you want to know. A pony cart's too baby or senile, and there are no roads fit for a car. An elephant enables me to get about," and he added as if with deliberate malice—"a royal means of transportation—in keeping with my position here. If you'll excuse me I'll go look the old chap over now he's bedded down."

He walked away to the end of the terrace. Hester followed him with her eye then breathed softly but distinctly: "Well, it's come!"

"What's come?" Sandy asked.

Isabel thrust out her foot and pressed his warningly.

"What we've long feared. Already suspected. G. P. senile dementia."

But why shouldn't the Colonel indulge his fancy? It strikes me this is a perfect place for an elephant. Right climate, no lack of fodder and lots of work the beast can do."

Jarvis gave a cackling laugh. "An elephant. My hat!"

"Oh shut up, Jarvis," Flavia said. "You should worry about the seawall. Molten money poured into blocks and for what?"

"Aren't you ever nervous here, Isabel?" Hester asked.

"Sometimes," Isabel admitted in her silken voice. "Now."

"The beast is apt to get ugly if it's a male," Vinckers said. "They go muzz, Run amuck."

"So do motor cars when driven by drunks," Isabel retorted.

"Well, something ought to be done about it," Jarvis said. "Now my idea is—"

There came from a shadowed recess a harsh "Hell's bells."

The chatter had disturbed the repose of Jakko the white cockatoo. Jarvis gave a tremendous bound. The others laughed. Jarvis said softly, "There ought to be a man on this island—a white man—a resident."

"There is," said Isabel. "An Irishman named Mike. He's the mahout."

"Worse and more so," Vinckers groaned.

Jarvis gave a tremendous bound. The others laughed.

"That's not all that Uncle's got out here," Isabel said.

"What else?"

"He's got a goat. A big white Angora goat named Murphy. But Murphy's really mine, and he's going to take some getting."

This veiled challenge did not get past unobserved. There was a moment's silence. Sandy felt that the family conclave was growing, for an outsider, thick. "I'll be getting out aboard," he said. He turned toward the lagoon, put a silver siren whistle to his lips and blew a wailing note. A few flashes of a blinker stabbed through the soft darkness. Hester said to Isabel, "You're letting him sleep aboard?"

"He wants to. He's writing a book on the Fourth Dimension which he says is the vehicle of love. Married love and family love and—oh, well—love. He came here to get some points. Sharp ones."

"Well, it's pleasant weather for it," Flavia said.

Sandy wished them good night and started down for the landing. Half way there he heard the click of heels and looked round to see Isabel following him.

"Aren't they dreadful? Hardly land before they get out their little hammers. Those rubber kind the doctors use to percuss you with."

"The doctors don't use them on your head," Sandy objected.

Isabel laughed. Vinckers' big voice called from the terrace: "Eight bells . . . change the watch . . . they heard his chairless squeak on the tiles as he shoved it back to rise. Isabel answered: "As you were. The dog watch isn't called in port."

"That," Sandy said, "was hot. Let's hope it burns through, though the hide of the hyena is tough. I understand a little better why he's not so glad to fine me here."

"Some men would like to press a button that would release a current to kill all the other men in the world

Miss Mary P. Carter, former principal of Fallsington schools, has returned from an auto trip to Washington, D. C. She was also a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carter.

The Spring meeting of the Bucks County Library Association, joined by the libraries in Montgomery County, will be held at the headquarters of the Mary H. Walter Library, Eureka, April 27th. A number of persons from Fallsington will attend this meeting.

Louise White Watson was a Sunday dinner guest of the Misses Moon.

Charles M. Headley has been ill with grippe.

Miss Muriel Coghill, who has been spending some time with her mother, Mrs. George Coghill, has returned to Yale Musical College.

Morris McCue, a former resident of Fallsington, now living at Summit, N. J., is quite ill in Overlook Hospital, Summit.

Miss Doris Bowman, Tullytown, was an overnight visitor at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bowman.

Baptism was administered in All Saints Church on Sunday morning by the Rev. Francis H. Smith, rector, to Margaret Ann, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ruth, Morrisville.

A birthday surprise party was given Mrs. Edward Crossdale Tomlinson, on Saturday evening. Her guests were: Miss Blanche Dunbracco, Edward Wolpert, Miss Eleanor Clucas, Fallsington; Mr. and Mrs. Norman White, Yardley; Earl Trumppore, Trenton, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Neal Carter and Mrs. Kathryn Fowler, Morrisville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ruth and daughter Margaret Ann, Morrisville, were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Champion.

RECREATION FIVE UPSETS FAST ARDMORE BOWLERS

By Louis Tomlinson

Returning to their home alleys, the Bristol Recreation five upset Ardmore's fast quintet from Upper Darby two out of three matches here Saturday night to regain their winning stride.

Bristol, through winning, maintained their winning ways on the home alleys. This was their fourth in six games at home they won, having taken two out of three here in their first home match against Jim Murgie's Delco quintet, whom Bristol meets away on Saturday night. Having taken the first half champions of the Philadelphia American League and the leaders of the second half in two out of three, it might be concluded that if the local bowlers were allowed to roll all their games at home, they might easily capture the title in this league.

This feat of winning at home is attributed to the fact that the alleys are so fast that new bowlers just rolling on them find them too fast to be able to control their ball right—a trick learned only through experience and constant bowling on these alleys.

The Recreation bowlers were victorious mainly through the efforts of their anchor ace, Joe Amisson, who hit for a grand total of 614 for the three games. Twice, in the first and third games, he rolled for better than 200, hitting for 211 in the opening tilt and 213 in the final. Only the second in which he hit for a high 192 did he miss the charmed mark.

However, Butera of Ardmore went the Bristol ace 14 points better by topping off a 630 score in bouncing the pins around for 206 in the take-off tilt, 190 in the second (notice that Joe had his man beaten in the first two games), and topped the evening off with a 234 final. Stevens also collaborated with Butera in the final to run up a high score against the local five by coming in a close second with a 231 score. He was the only other individual to hit above 200 for the evening.

The starting affair was decided by only eleven pins with the Recs on top in a close skirmish. This tilt may be said to have been decided by Brooks' 11 pin advantage over his rival Chapin in the final to run up a high score against the local five by coming in a close second with a 231 score. He was the only other individual to hit above 200 for the evening.

The scores for Saturday's games were as follows:

Bristol
Brooks	163	180	176	519
Stewart	183	167		350
Encke	157	187	161	505

CHIEF LITTLE WOLF TO OPPOSE JOE DUSEK

TRENTON, Apr. 14—Chief Little Wolf and Joe Dusek will supply the fireworks at Johnny Ipp's weekly wrestling party at the Arena tonight. Joe and the Chief, who are on winning streaks of quite respectable standing, are feudists of long standing and this will be the "rubber" match for them. They are two of the top-notch grapplers of the game and a bitter, grueling battle is expected to result when they clash. It will be a one fall match to a positive finish, and a winner will surely be declared.

A match that could be featured as a twin attraction, but is only billed as the semi-windup, is the bout between Wally Dusek, newest of the Dusek menaces, and Mike Strelch, Seattle youngster, who has not lost a match here. Both will be battling to remain in the limelight and a corking struggle is bound to ensue. It will be a one fall, one hour time limit encounter.

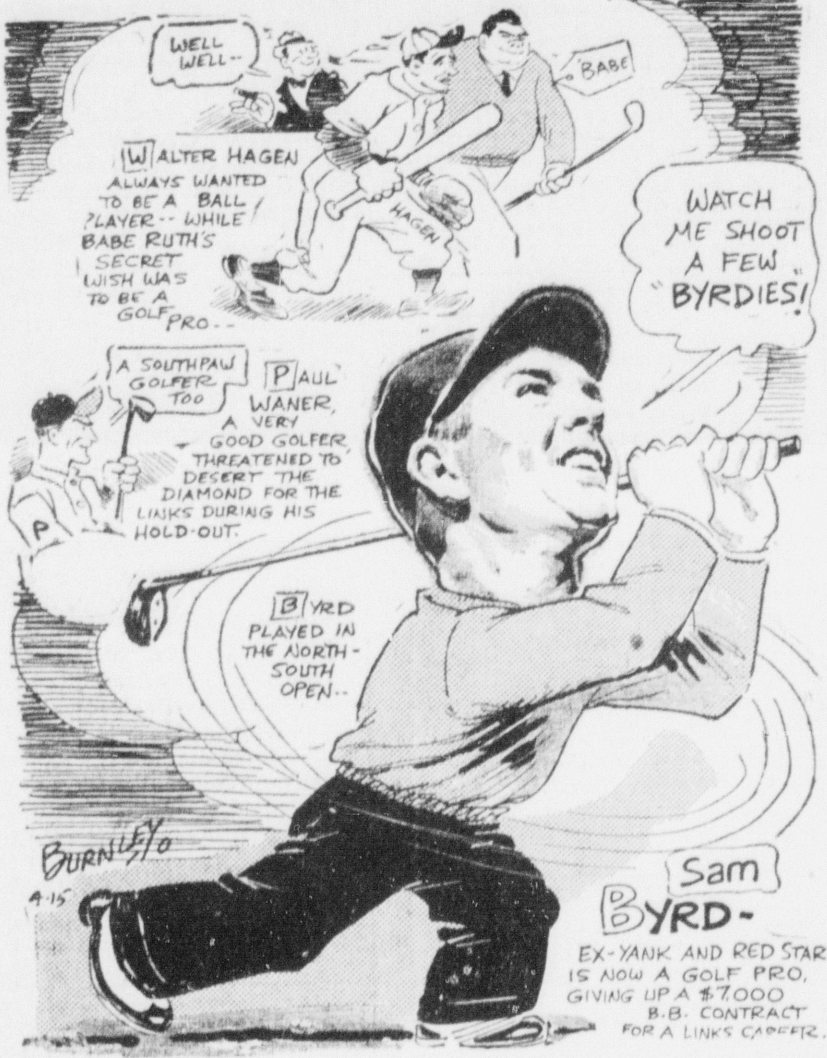

In 30-minute time limit matches, Wee Willie Davis, Virginia giant, will vie with Sandor Vary of Hungary, and Bob Managoff, young Roumanian, will come to grips with Jimmy Coffield of Kansas City.

From Diamond to Links

By BURNLEY

News from the South a few weeks ago stated that one Samuel Dewey Byrd was among the golfers competing in the annual North and South Open at Pinehurst, N. C.

This piece of information may not seem of much interest to you, as the said Samuel Dewey Byrd didn't win the tourney—in fact, he wasn't even up among the leaders. But the point is that this Byrd is the same bird who played the outfield for the Yankees and the Reds.

Sammy gave up a $7,000 baseball contract to become a golf pro, and it remains to be seen whether he made a wise choice. While he was a ball player, the sports writers were always saying that he was a great golfer. Now that he's a links professional, I suppose everybody will keep referring to his baseball ability.

Several other ball players have had ambitions to take up golf as a career. During his hold-out, Paul Waner recently threatened to quit the diamond for the fairways. Paul is just about the best golfer now in big league baseball, and has competed successfully in a number of minor tournaments. He's a southpaw linksman, to boot.

Babe Ruth always fancied himself as a golfer, and is reported to have recently lamented the fact that he didn't become a links star instead of a diamond hero. On the other mitt, Walter Hagen secretly wished to be a professional ball player, and used to work out with the big league teams at training camps.

BENSALEM CRUSHES YARDLEY NINE; 12 TO 4

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, April 14—Coach Reimer's Bensalem Owls easily triumphed over the Yardley nine, yesterday, by a 12-4 score.

Hits were prevalent throughout the game.

Robinson did good work on the mound and was relieved in the fifth by McGahn, who also pitched well.

Due to Bensalem's early lead, all of the reserves saw action some time during the game.

The Owls will meet Newtown this Friday in their first league game on the home field.

"CHET" CASTOR WINS GLOVE CHAMPIONSHIP

Seven Middle Atlantic A. A. U. junior boxing champions were crowned last night at the Mason A. C. Philadelphia. "Chet" Castor, Bristol's only titleholder, met a tartar in "Al" Givigliano, of the Seymour Club.

Castor, the favorite to win, during the three rounds, hit "Al" with everything but the water-bucket. The two fought like two champs. "Chet" was the winner in three rounds, and the Junior Middle Atlantic title, "Chet" will box in New York on April 24th, at St. Nick's Arena in a return match with "Joe" Wall, New York's champ. Two other bouts are in the making, one at the Arena in Philadelphia, and another in Camden, N. J.

EDMONTON, Alberta (INS)—Postal officials here have let the cat out of the bag—literally. When they opened a mail bag from Calgary, a cat sprang out. She appeared somewhat dazed, but little the worse for wear. She had travelled 200 miles. It is assumed that the cat fell into the bag at Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morgan and son Harold, Jr., and daughter Janice, and Mrs. Frederick Downs, Wilmington, Del., were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Downs, 1007 Radcliffe street. On Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Downs had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Padden, Detroit, Mich., who just returned from a trip to New York City and Bermuda.

SIXTEEN CLUBS OPEN GOLF COURSES TO SCRIBES

DOYLESTOWN, April 14—Sixteen of the leading country clubs in this section of the country have so far extended the courtesy of their courses to the golfing members of the Philadelphia Suburban Sport Writers' Association for a day during the 1937 season. Before the schedule is completed at least 30 clubs will be on the 1937 schedule.

The suburban sport writers have a membership of 45, including practically all the newspapers in the suburban Philadelphia district, in Bucks, Montgomery, Chester, Delaware and parts of Philadelphia counties.

The schedule opens next Monday, April 19, at Baederwood, Jenkintown, according to A. Russell Thomas, sports editor of the Doylestown Daily Intelligencer, chairman of the golf committee of the suburban writers. Courses that are definitely scheduled at this time are as follows:

April 19, Baederwood, Jenkintown; April 26, Valley Forge, at King of Prussia; May 17, Jeffersonville, at Jeffersonville; May 20, Plymouth Country Club, Norristown; May 24, Lulu Temple Country Club, North Hills; June 7, Cedarbrook Country Club, Mount Airy; June 9, Pine Valley Golf Club, Clementon, N. J.; June 14, Tredyffrin Country Club, Paoli; June 21, Aronimink Golf Club, Newtown Square; July 15, Springhaven Club, Wallingford, Delaware county; July 19, Philmont Country Club, Philmont; July 29, Tavistock Country Club, Haddonfield, N. J.; August 2, Sunnybrook Golf Club, Flourtown; August 5, Trenton Country Club; August 9, Sandy Run Country Club, Oreland; August 30, Manufacturers' Country Club, Oreland.

Mrs. William Horton, Burlington, N. J., spent a day during the past week visiting her father, A. J. Hellyer, Wood street.

homes; towns make up the states, and states form the federal government. Thus we have the government in which we each have influence.

Other good advice given consisted of: "Use your own judgment as to what is right and wrong. Think things out. Use your vote intelligently. Use this gift which is about to be given you by the government intelligently. When you become a citizen you are the equal of every other citizen in this country."

Keep your love of your fatherland, but give your allegiance to this country. But don't let your former connections influence you too far. Become 100% Americans. Be proud of your American citizenship, and practice it, and you will become a part of the finest Democracy there is."

The first individual introduced during the evening by Miss Thompson was Mrs. Arthur Zug, who read the essay written by Miss Anna Hunter, Eddington, and for which Miss Hunter received a medal as third prize. The essay contest was conducted several months ago under auspices of the American Legion. The subject of the piece was "Crime, a Challenge to American Youth."

The classes conducted each Thursday evening in the Sons of Italy hall are in charge of D. A. Sylvester. The Wood street building classes are conducted on Tuesday and Friday evenings.

G. Raymond Nickerson, project head of the education and recreation work of the WPA in Bucks county, was also introduced to the gathering. Mr. Nickerson stressed the need of co-operation, and spoke of the splendid work being done through co-operation of the American Legion in sponsoring the WPA school, and the Sons of Italy in donating use of their building, for the WPA classes. "Both are working to the same end—American citizenship," he added. Mr. Nickerson told of the work of the Adult Education Division of the WPA.

The program closed with the group singing "America."
